Each writer should provide three items to the reviewer: the essay prompt, the intended theme and the first draft of the essay.

The theme matches the draft. In other words, the essay achieves what the writer intended.	Yes	No
The essay addresses the prompt.	Yes	No
If the essay does not address the prompt, would you suggest adjusting the prompt to match the draft or revising the draft to fit the prompt?
Note 2-3 spots where the writer could elaborate and free write outside the essay (e.g. places where more detail might be interesting or where they make general statements without much concrete detail.)
Note 2-3 spots the writer could explore as potential new openings. Keep in mind that the purpose of this exercise is to help the writer enter the essay from new perspectives, so they can consider alternatives and see the essay with fresh eyes.
